"The Beginning"

I'm drawing a dream
That no one would call pretty
I'm losing to others
But I'll continue to draw
Because giving up isn't always best
I don't want to leave the rest
I don't want to leave you

I'm tripping down on the asphalt ground
I'm falling hard and don't think I can stand
I'm trying my best to smile hard
I'm crying hard behind the scenes
But it's all a part of one big picture

I can't say it hurts when it hurts so badly
I can't tell the truth when I don't want to lie
I can't say I'm okay when I'm about to cry
I can't say I love you when I love you so much

I'm making mistakes in important parts
I'm breaking promises and can't try to start
I'm calling your name as loud as I can
I'm falling behind, left behind in the darkness
And I'd still say it's a part of one big dream

I can't say it hurts when it hurts so badly
I can't tell the truth when I don't want to lie
I can't say I'm okay when I'm about to cry
I can't say I love you when I love you so much

It's a reason to change
It's a reason to try
It's a reason to be honest to myself
And I'd say that it's all a beginning
Of a dream to be the same
And tell who I love, that I really love you
To tell who I love, that I really love you
