Just when you had it right, everything was sewn up tight
Now the stitches are slipping, and those lies are falling out

Now that your world is a wreck, life grab you right by the neck

Oh, it's so sad, but I love to see you go down

Yeah, I said what I said

Well, I laugh so hard, I cry cherry red

When it all blows up in your face, that look I have to embrace

You know that one you get, just before you cry

Again stuck in your own traps, set a few of myself perhaps

Point and laugh, until the day I die

And the smile turns at the end of my mouth

'Cause all your dreams are rolling south

A cartless old train ran over you two times

Just when you had it right, everything was sewn up tight
But the stitches are slipping, and those lies are falling

Now that your life is a wreck, life grab you right by the neck

Oh, it's so sad, but I still love to watch you go down

And the smile turns at the end of my mouth

'Cause all your dreams are rolling south

A smile turned at the end of my mouth

'Cause all your dreams are rolling south

A cartless old train ran over you two times

Well, I laugh so hard, I cry cherry red
