I have never felt this wrong before and I will never let this die taken a beating no use for second chances anymore cuz I heard every line on the radio that morning when you looked me in the eyes and told me that this was the last time ill keep waiting but the phone never rings it must be easier to pretend youre not letting me down ill take this one for the team and ill let you ill let you blame this one on me cuz where im from every sad song

makes me remember everything that you said to me and now im waiting for that phone call that can turn back time cuz where im from
just never is enough, never is enough
and now im waiting for that phone call that will never come i was trying to get it through to you ive wasted all my life in the bathroom mirror its a little too obvious that youre not here

cuz I heard every line on the radio that morning

turn down my favorite song it looks like we'll have to sing louder its not the end of the world cuz i know every word like every time you stabbed me in the back

I didnt think you noticed when she said i love you it happened way too fast what was running through my head? how can you say that after everything youve done to me how can you say that after everything youve done thinking of you on another cold run down second street

im three blocks down the lights go out its bitter sweet
another step or two (but it happened way too fast) i cant slow down
im leaving the scene this ones for you tonight on second street
