All these miles, haunting questions linger in my mind
And all the while, making bad decisions out of line
Still I've tried to let go off the danger in my life
It's alright, when that's the only thing I've left behind
And there's still time

Wait for me there's so much more of life for us to see You must believe it's not because of you I've had to leave
Wait for me I only hope that you'll remember me

At this time I'm counting all the reasons I should stay
The bottom line, I'm missing all the things I gave away
I remind and see your faces every single day Still I'm blind, I wish that there was something I could say
To make things right

Wait for me there's so much more of life for us to see
You must believe it's not because of you I've had to
leave
Wait for me I only hope that you'll remember me

Just hold on a little bit longer Thoughts and memories will be enough
My need for you is only growing stronger
You don't need to understand it much

But it doesn't mean I have to care about you any less
It doesn't have a thing to do with that There's still so many questions that are gonna be addressed
I'm sorry that it had to be like this but there's still time
to make things right

Wait for me there's so much more of life for us to see You must believe it's not because of you I've had to
leave
Wait for me I only hope that you'll remember me
You must believe it's not because of you I've had to leave
Wait for me, wait for me
