

Fleming & John

"The Plague"

Visit "The Plague" on MotoLyrics.com

Crashing waves of ecstasy and pain
I'm looking towards the sky with pure disdain
Bleeding in a world of consciousness
Too blind to see in daylight
I know this world is slowly dying
Too crippled a dream of a perfect life to believe in divinity
I'm looking towards the burning sky
There's nothing left for me
I have learned from the human race
The way to live is lie
I have heard of a far off place
Where angels go to die
Cities fall and crumble to the ground
And your god is nowhere to be found
The scent of death will fade away in time
Until then I'll covet what's mine
The sound of screams will echo in my ears
Until they are washed away by tears
I have learned from the human race
The way to live is lie
I have heard of a far off place
Where angels go to die

Visit Fleming & John page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.