A house with a sign we all know welcomed folks to come and go
give money, smiles and families grow.
the Lord said it shall be so.
But true when sound came crashing down and hideous ruled over the town.
the house was shut down.
You're welcome here,
but others are not welcome here.
one voice said, Please, come this way.
another place not very far.
white walls and no faces painted, underneath a moon and a star
Fat men simling, bearded men, with blue eyes shining doubt within.
Human grace has never been nor will be.
you're welcome here
but others are not welcome here.
many wives and many lives
the smoke don't kill, it reddens eyes.
the time has come to pay blood tithe to one true god.
each other are the manifest of moon and star
you're welcome here
but others are not welcome here.
