Rise above
I think we all have had enough
So cry away all the things that they say
and they'll push you the wrong way

So she goes through life looking for friends she wish she had But the world might as well be empty of all people
No one gives her a glance and no one understands She's alone, as alone as one can be
So she searches

What can we do but try to rise above
Try to find the love
'Cause it's better than being alone
Take my hand and try to understand
That the sun only goes where it knows
Where it knows

He doesn't understand at all Everything he's done so far has raise the bar
So he tries to believe that everything will end ok
Everything will be fine
So he searches

What can we do but try to rise above
Try to find the love
'Cause it's better than being alone
Take my hand and try to understand
That the sun only goes where it knows
Where it knows

So we ride the boat of human nature
Where the current takes us is almost always the same
A waterfall into the depths beneath
You've never seen darkness like this before

I think we all have had enough
So cry away all the things that they say
and they'll push you the wrong way
