colors are countless in number and there are so many that will never be seen described as being shades of nothing its like explaining eyesight to the blind your system we call mathematical is incomplete in its potential in the areas of math and color the relations are undiscovered don't start trying to reveal the hidden reflections of light by modifying your intelligence it will always be im possible a numeral; a little more than three, but not as much as four it's not a fraction or a decimal no human will ever live to reveal the undiscovered numbers and colors no... man... will... live... to... see!....
