Maestro, as you paint this picture would you tell me
what-what's going on in your mind.
Now the cross, the mystical vertical cross.
Out of black paint,
(...via con questo coso per... cortesia...)
a cross comes down from the top left hand side of the canvas.
(via con quella testa per cortesia!)
he has just thrown a bunch of gold paint which has not only hit me in the face, (...ostia...)
but has gone across the canvas to the applause of the crowd below.
(...calma... aspetta... ahÃ³ aspetta cazzo, eh... adesso, aspetta!)
now some black paint (...giÃ² con quella testa! giÃ² la testa nico... via via con quel coso lÃ² porcoddio...)
This is the head, this is the head-this is the head of the black death.
The canvas and the photographers are covered with paint.
I might add, its black paint and gold paint on a white
canvas.
(...un pochettino un pochettino! cosÃ² cosÃ² dai!
piÃ² in lÃ²!)
(crowd)
that was a Ã§ " a big slash of paint.
What is this.
(Ah aaah ah ah [dialetto] Ã² bellissimo?? non va piÃ² via... [dialetto] guarda, No, no, no! Eeehh!)
Now he got even with the photographers who have been covering the canvas,
And opens the canvas and out comes twelve pigeons!
Ha ha ha!
Twelve homing pigeons have just flown out of the
canvas.
Maestro, what are you doing?
(applause)
You call this painting...
Le Lion de St. Mark.

The lion of St. Mark.
Homage ãi Venice.
Homage to Venice, the home (ha ha) of the lion of St.
Mark.
