I write, you run away

I won't say words to your face
I write you run away
But you can't explain, cause you're afraid
You might stay

I had a taste, and found out you're fake
It's a shame to waste that on such a pretty face
You're a picture with no frame
Wax with no flame
And you still melt away, you melt away

You breathed me in
And exhaled what could've been Exhaled what we could have been

And you may erase me all from your memories
But you can't escape me in your dreams

I write you run away

Don't call my name if you're leaving
Don't ask the same when you need me

I won't say words to your face
I write you run away
But you can't explain, cause you're afraid
You might stay
