

Francesco Renga

"October"

Visit "October" on MotoLyrics.com

We can wait forever for the tide to come
And when it does will the waves be chasing us?
And there are still too many voices praying from these hills
I won't listen no more

There's a voice that's in our hearts it's over my head
And it will learn to speak for all of us
And we will die a memory of everything we had
I will learn to blame myself for these empty words they hang over my head

It's here I stood on my dividing line hoping God would find me here
I have never know such strength before
But how could I begin to fight my demons left in here
I won't fear you no more

There's a voice that's in our hearts it's over my head
And it will learn to speak for all of us
And we will die a memory of everything we had
I will learn to blame myself for these empty words they
hang over my head

There's a voice that's in my lungs it's under my skin
And I have learned to speak for all of us
And I won't rest until I feel my body turn to dust
I will learn to blame myself for these empty words they
hang over my head

There's a voice that's in our hearts it's over my head
And it will learn to speak for all of us
And we will die a memory of everything we had
I will learn to blame myself for these empty words they
hang over my head

Visit Francesco Renga page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.