I'm sorry that I never called but I was out
I didn't get the message that you sent
I figured it was better left alone
I think about it all the time
And I've got half a dozen letters that I'll never send They'll sit and gather dust there by the phone

And we'd sit out to watch the sunrise
From the tracks down by the high rise
And you were singing to yourself
Wearing sneakers that I borrowed
They'll be back to you tomorrow
And I was thinking to myself

I'm sorry, don't worry
We'll leave awkwardness alone
Express my regret by
Never picking up the phone

The winters here are very cold
And I don't know if I will stick around another year
My patience and my blood are wearing thin
And in my head I still see times of
You and I, we'll put aside whatever differences
It's too damn bad things worked out like they did

And we'd sit out to watch the sunrise
From the tracks down by the high rise
And you were singing to yourself
Wearing sneakers that I borrowed
They'll be back to you tomorrow
And I was thinking to myself

I'm sorry, don't worry
We'll leave awkwardness alone
Express my regret by
Never picking up the phone

I'm sorry, don't worry
We'll leave awkwardness alone
Express my regret by

Never picking up the phone
