(This is a song about severe emotional problems)

I always believed that if I ran off to India

Wore sandals and shaved my head

And used Body shop conditioner, and incense like crazy

I could call myself a spirit head

But I only went to India to look on top

I wore sandals cause I'd smoked all my money

And I shaved off all my hair cause I had the fleas

I'd been sleeping all over

And the Body shop conditioner was a present from a friend

And the incense used to hide the smell

Of the drug den that I lay in

And so I ask myself what my motives are

For this Limey to look so free

And if I tell myself real honestly

What more can I admit to, open up a door

He said I'm gonna find out what I'm here for

He said I'd find out soon

I got too much Saturn and not enough Moon

I always believed that if I never missed a Yoga class

Read my horoscope in the dailies
And recycle bottles, and know a Red Indian
I could call myself a spirit man
But I was only doing Yoga cause I fancied the teacher
And stars cause it looked good on paper
And I only went to church cause my granny gave me money
When confession was over
And I only knew the Indian cause his brother's a dealer
And bottles had a price on their return
So I could go and play, Oh my my
And so I ask myself what my motives are
For this Limey to look so free
And if I tell myself real honestly
What more can I admit to, open up a door
He said I'm gonna find out what I'm here for
He said I'd find out soon
I got too much Saturn and not enough Moon
So now that you know why I don't love you
And now that you see that I'm so scared
Am I a good man ?
Am I a deep deep man ?
What more can I admit to, open up a door
He said I'm gonna find out what I'm here for
He said I'd find out soon
I got too much Saturn

How can I admit it, open up a door

He said I'm gonna find out what I'm here for

He said I'd find out soon

I got too much Saturn and not enough Moon
