

Frank Sinatra

"Goodbye"

Visit "Goodbye" on MotoLyrics.com

There is no great big ending, no sunset in the sky
There is no string ensemble, and she doesn't even cry
And just as I begin to say that we should make another try
She reaches out across the table looks at me and quietly says good-bye
There is no big explosion, no tempest in the tea
The world does not stop turning round, there's no big tragedy Sitting in a coffee shop with cheesecake and some apple pie
She reaches out across the table looks at me and
quietly says good-bye
Good-bye, said so easily, Good-bye, said so quietly Good-bye, good-bye, good-bye, just two always strangers avoid each other's eyes One still make believing, one still telling lies, she tells me that I'm not to blame But when I ask the reason why
She reaches out across the table looks at me and
quietly says good-bye
Good-bye, said so easily. Good-bye, said so quietly
Good-bye, good-bye, good-bye
She reaches out across the table looks at me and
quietly says good-bye

Visit Frank Sinatra page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.