

Frank Sinatra "There I Go"

There I go, leading with my heart again
And there I go, acting not so smart again
Then though it's unwise, I can't disguise my love

Though I know too much love may curb the fire
There I go, led astray by my desire
There's no golden rule to guide a fool in love

I tell my heart, "Be careful
Or you'll find that you dream alone"
I'm wise it's true, what good does it do?
My heart has a mind of its own

There I go, spilling all the dreams I knew
And there I go thrillingly in love with you
Don't know if you care, darling but there I go
