Ophelia

Is staring through the window at the trees

I can't see the horizon that she sees

She's up there in the moment

And I'm down here on my knees

Ophelia

Is standing in the doorway to my heart

We cannot be together or apart

She's caught me on her line

But she denies me every time

Ophelia let me take you where I want to go

Down between the pillars of your soul

No one has to know

Conversation

It halts and then it sputters like a flame

It falters there but reappears again

And I'm caught between the words

So all I do is say your name

Ophelia

You led me to this forest on a lark

Content to leave me stumbling in the dark

But I've known all the time
One false move and you are mine
Ophelia let me take you where I want to go
Down between the pillars of your soul
No one has to know
Ophelia you mustn't try to tell me how to feel
Cause everything I dream about is real
I can't just let it go
Ophelia no one else can tell you how to feel
Cause everything you dream about is real
Don't ever let it go
