(Mac Davis - Freddy Weller)

Many miles come between us since the morning sun has seen us
Building up our dream world to the skies
Now my days are cold and dark the thoughts of you still warm my heart
As I recall the love you gave to me soft and warm within my memory.

Hidden deep within your eyes with daffodils and summer skies
With meadow larks and butterflies that play Sometimes when the night is still I kiss the breeze and almost feel
These sweet lips pressed against me tenderly Soft and warm within my memory.

Where do all the flowers go when summer's covered up with snow
I guess the winter wind calls up her name
You were like the summer flower love is just a fleeting hour
And all I ever dream's to comfort me soft and warm within my memory.

Now the winter laughs at me and asks me where I'm gonna be
If you don't bring the springtime back again I'll be running through the snow searching for the winter rose
To press between the dreams you have with me You're soft and warm within my memory...
