you could have been this, you could have been that. if you'd have just picked up the slack. she's picking up all the pieces that you made. and she's putting them back. she's gonna show your photograph. to all the rest of the girls. because on the day that you met. she became the happiest girl in the world. i mean, oh my god. enough is enough! i'm never gonna be the guy she's dreaming of. so my cigarettes keep making you sick. well i'm allergic to your perfume. but you don't hear me bitch about it you could have said this, you could have said that. if you only had held it all back. you took everything nice she did for you. and turned it to crap. you wasted all your money on cigarettes. and on the day that you met. you became the luckiest boy in the world. i mean, oh my god enough is enough! won't she realize that without me she'd be better off. so my cigarettes keep making her sick. well i'm allergic to her perfume. but you don't hear me bitch about it. we've gone and thrown it all away. two years and a month lost in a day. she 'll take it easy anyway. whip crack away. you could have been this, you could have been that. if you'd have just picked up the slack. she's picking up all the pieces that you made. and she's putting them back. she's gonna show your photograph. to all the rest of the girls. because on the day that you met she became the happiest girl in the world. i mean, oh my god. enough is enough! i'm never gonna be the guy she's thinking off. so my cigarettes keep making her sick. well i'm allergic to her perfume. but you don't hear me bitch about it
