Used to see that good things were in everything around
Resting deep in middle class you never took it up the arse
And always had it comfortable as everybody should
You might have forgot your PIN but your sister is not on heroin Its been a long time since you were 13
And you walked outside and thought that things were cool
Problems, you got so much problems you got so much nothing problems you got so much nothing
Been a long time since you were 13
And you walked outside and thought that things were cool
It's the wrong time to sit and cry by yourself
When you didn't end up going to indo as a mule
Write dumb poetry and make your face look sad
Think that Brian Molko has the answers from placebo
But he's just another millionaire who knows his life is good
He makes a dollar 20 every time you feel misunderstood
Its been a long time since you were 13
And you walked outside and thought that things were cool
oh oh oh Problems

It's the wrong time in the right part of town
And you don't give a shit about a foreigner dead
But when your mate breaks up with the girl next door
Then you feign concern coz you think things are cool
Been a long time since you were 13
And you walked and thought that things were cool
It's the right time to admit to yourself
That you're top of the pile and you've changed into a fool
Been a long time since and internet scam took second place to a massacred town
If you looked outside of the cage that you've built for yourself in your mind
Would you think that you were cool?
