"The Laws Of Digging"

Visit "The Laws Of Digging" on MotoLyrics.com

The first law: When (one) him finds (oneself) himself in a hole of one's own digging is stop digging
The second law: When someone you dig stops digging you - you gotta let them go

You've got to know when to get off the train
You've got to know when to catch it again
In life there's a place to begin
As long as you know the laws of digging

Another law is to dig for spare change
If you meet someone, who needs it more
The golden law is to dig unto others
As you would have them dig unto you

You've got to know when to get off the train
You've got to know when to catch it again
In life there's a place to begin
As long as you know the laws of digging

Dig for oil
And dig for gold
In everyone you meet
And just maybe you'll find it "fçâ, -"

You've got to know when to get off the train
You've got to know when to catch it again

In life there's a place to begin
As long as you know the laws of digging

You've got to know when to get off the train
You've got to know when to catch it again
In life there's a place to begin
As long as you know the laws of digging

You've got to know when to get off the train
You've got to know when to catch it again
In life there's a place to begin
As long as you know the laws of digging

Dig for oil

And dig for gold in
Dig for oil
And dig for gold
In everyone you meet
And just maybe you'll find it
