Come gather in my lungs Scottish wind Belt out your blackest poems as the sea around you sings
When the drone takes to the air a single note to raise my hair
Carry songs beyond my lungs cold Scottish winds

Come fall upon my shoulders Scottish rain And dissolve all of the worry that has hunched this back of mine
Let the hurt run down the drain to the reservoir
And one day I'll add a drop of my old worries to a dram

Gather heavy in my lungs Scottish wind All the fag smoke in the ether of the grouse that clips your wings

And I will cough just like my granddad and his grandpa before him
Oh blow youth into these lungs old Scottish wind

Come burl around my body Scottish blood I'll try not to spill a drop, I'm sure you've spilled enough And the ancient English rule will mean nothing to these towns
Run forever in my veins bold Scottish blood

Bring a whisper to my mouth soft Scottish winds Just enough to say I love to the girl that keeps me sane
And take the stupid things I've said and blow them miles and miles away
Thank you in advance Scottish wind
Thank you in advance Scottish wind
