The minds of power,
Devour nature.
Where can I find the four-leaf clover?

Why do we wonder,
And where do we wonder to?
Thousands suffer, we sleep, they starve, we eat.
Instead of fighting, why not feed and clothe the poor?
I hear some screams, but none of them are for joy.
World full of greed,
And so much suffering.

We dream on.
We dream on.

Why?
Lies, Lies,
Greed, Lies,
Selfish greed.

Look at the sky.
Look at the sky.
Look at the sky.
Look at the sky.
Look at the sky.
Look - at - the - sky!

Can you hear their cries?
Wake up!
Wake up!
Is this the only way?
Where, where can we find peace?
And where has the joy gone, the joy?

What makes us sour?
Do you understand,
The melancholic tears of the stranger?

TakeAlookAtTheSky,
It's so beau-ti-ful!

Why do we have,
To want more always?
They say it's only human nature.
Strength from your soul,
We all get old,
A lesson learnt, a scar is born.
A new day, a new rain.

Go to the well,
You can - not - drink - it.
The water in the well.

Why do we have,
To want more always?
They say it's only human nature.
Strength from your soul,
We all get old,
A lesson learnt, a scar is born.
A new day, a new rain.
But I'm still torn...

Look - at - the - sky!

A light lit from a wind turbine in the desert,
It appears spinning round & round a long way away.
This is a fine idea.
Brought from the ocean winds that keep us thinking.
