{You break my heart into a thousand pieces
And you say it's because I deserve better?}

{You break my heart
You break my heart
You break my heart}

{You break my heart into a thousand pieces
And you say it's because I deserve better?}

Emotionless gray skies
Bleed somber dreams of sorrow
Blackened unseen heart
Tears, a virgin's godlike innocence

From its pristine palace
Paint sarcastic smiles upon new wounds
Tears of misery, stain scar filled minds

Hatred new like tomorrow flows from bitter memories
Purity now embraced by sinful ideals, why?
Lifeless tomb rests weary with prowling peering eyes
Silence falls upon deaf ears covered by night

Alone in thought, shaking
Biting tongues of lead at unfit moments
Screaming disbelief with no faith in site

Yeah, her disgust has borders
Limits to strive for
She bends and breaks
To the rules set by the weak

She's finally seen, she's a beautiful girl
With a smile so grand she could stop the world
Stolen her skin, he sews her mouth shut
Means nothing to him, her screams just die out

As she cries out
Her voice dies out
As she cries out
Her voice dies out

Love once inside her heart, lay in my hands
Love once inside her heart, lay in my hands
Love once inside her heart, lay in my hands

So beautiful
She cries
So beautiful

Was it asked for?
Was it implied?
What could have been done?

Was it asked for?
Was it implied?
What could have been done?
Inside her mind dies
