This song is about how
Growing up has become
Synonymous with being a
Boring, self-loathing,
Judgemental pretty junkie

For so long I've been told to give it up
To get a job and stop dreaming
Of what I'm dreaming of.

Maybe if I was more like you
I'd have a single thing to say
I could look forward to
I could look forward to

I'm not the same kid that I used to be
But I still got the same philosophy

If growing up is giving in,
Then count on me to count myself out(x2)

Getting sued by my friends
Taught me that, I can't pretend
That I'm immune to the rules of... adulthood

I'd rather be a starving artist
Than a wealthy critic
I'd rather be a space cadet
Than bitter and jaded

Brain-dead and rewarded
What everyone else my age is

I'm not the same kid that I used to be
But I still got the same philosophy

If growing up is giving in,
Then count on me to count myself out(x2)

I'm not the same kid
I'm not the same child

I might still be a prick
But at least I'm not a prick in denial!

I wake up late just to
Miss the whole day
Through this putrid spew
That I call a bedroom
Putting on clothes
Just to take them off
In a couple of hours
Why the fuck do I bother!

I wake up late just to
Miss the whole day
Through this putrid spew
That I call a bedroom
Putting on clothes
Just to take them off
I'll ride this train
And hope it never stops!

This is all I got
This is all I want(x3)
