every little step you take
every little move you make they're watching you they're watching you without respect for your life

Everywhere are microphones they listen all day and night to every tiny word you speak in your very little world so you better speak a word keep the silence in your heart no more shoutings anywere until they leave you
