We've all heard their normal lies, that they use to justify
We're all so simplified, by that final rising tide

All the things you have, everything you know
All the things are rubbish, everything is gold
The real is the way, the false to no end
Got to grasp the now, let go of your sins

We've all heard their normal lies, that they use to
justify
We're all so simplified, by that final, rising tide

Just a drop in the sea, pebble on the beach Nothing really changes, when we cease to be
Not to make you frown, or start to get you down
That's just the nature, of this world spinning round

We've all heard their normal lies, that they use to
justify
We're all so simplified, by that final, rising tide

Like a river to the lake, or a rock on the roll
Just enjoy the ride, go with the flow
Don't fight your mother nature, or your father time
Your not meant for a box, or standing in a line

We've all heard their normal lies, that they use to
justify
We're all so simplified, by that final, rising tide
