Many times we'd help each other out Favours for favours is nothing new You're asking me to use my fingertips
What I'm sculpting and molding isn't you

These may seem like stupid words
Only two more that you've heard
Everybody's looking for their saving grace
In their race to find a place

I was watching through the window
You were going through the dances
I've been writing all of it down
I'll be taking all my chances
This always seems to happen

There's something that you do, I just can't help myself
And I wish that I could move more in time with you
I've watched you step and I've watched you turn
I've watched you move like a knife in the water Watched you move across the floor, over to me, for all
to see

Now you're asking what it is I want
Half a chance to dance with you
With a little time to work it out
I know the results could astonish you

I was watching through the window
You were going through the dances
I've been writing all of it down
I'll be taking all my chances
This always seems to happen

There's something that you do, I just can't help myself
And I wish that I could move more in time with you
I've watched you step and I've watched you turn
I've watched you move like a knife in the water
Watched you move across the floor, over to me, for all
to see

There's something that you do, I just can't help myself

And I wish that I could move more in time with you
I've watched you step and I've watched you turn
I've watched you move like a knife in the water
Watched you move across the floor, over to me, for all
to see
