You put the color in my eyes
Every time I get to see your smile
I can't admit it but I think I really like it

Let's take stock of the shock
How can we review, how can we review?
We're getting tired anyway
Let's save it for tomorrow

You will never find anyone
To come along and take you by surprise
Because you've had too much to think tonight

You will never find anyone
To come along and take you by surprise
Because you've had too much to think tonight

I take risks but I don't rely on them
I get the feeling that she likes to take them now and then
Am I right or am I wrong? I wonder should we carry on

You will never find anyone
To come along and take you by surprise
Because you've had too much to think tonight

You will never find anyone
To come along and take you by surprise
Because you've had too much to think tonight

If you try to talk to me
I will stare you down
If you try to take over me
I will turn you around

You will never find anyone
To come along and take you by surprise
Because you've had too much to think tonight

You will never find anyone
To come along and take you by surprise
Because you've had too much to think tonight
