

Boy Sets Fire "In Hope"

In hope this little angel will be free from all of their poisons
And in hope I grind my knees into the floor
Praying that he'll never have to feel this pain I have felt Walking through glass ignorant of the pain in my feet Sweet little hands, innocent face so unaware of what lies in waiting

In hope they will be forever waiting for you
And in hope you will never look back and hate these days
That I've held your hand
Falling away, changing each day to his own fate
Until I am needed no more for his comfort of his joy

And in hope you will never look back and hate these
That I've held your hand
Falling away, changing each day to his own fate
Until I am needed no more for his comfort of his joy

In hope there's an answer, and in hope I cry
And I am beaten just the same by this subtle game
As he breaks away, I take

I turn my face to the sky for a way to decline
These fairy tales that will mold into nightmares
This fate laid out in my hands
Unatoned I descend into my own indecision

In hope, in hope, in hope I can turn this page
Falling away, changing each day to his own fate
When I feel him go running on his own
Wait for something more there is not
