There's not enough for me to go on
There's not the information I require
We're caught in fear
Of all our bridges burning with desire
This moment is all in here
Build me up and tear me down
Make me one thousand pieces as you please

I'm strong enough
Belonging to the fire
But no one ever noticed more than me
There's so much more that I could tell you
Don't ever question darkness, trust, or fear

We analyse
And summarize
Erasing complications that appear
As I recline into the distance
And everything you say drifts out of time

Receding now
And free somehow
Fading in and out from time to time

No one ever noticed
Is something wrong?
There's no resistance
My senses only partially respond

There's nothing wrong
Don't need assistance
I find I am at ease where I belong

Reality strikes back at me
The greatest single thing there's never been

No one ever noticed
More than me
The greatest single thing there's never been
