In a mid western town, children form a parade,
With the flag bearer leading the way.
There's farmers, and teachers, the old and the young,
lift, together, their voices to say.

(Chorus)

I pledge my allegiance to the grand old flag, and the promise of hope from sea to sea. Under God, one nation, undivided, we will stand. Lift the banner of liberty.

It's the final kickoff for the NFL, and the stadium is packed with screaming fans.
All the banners are flying,
the color guards advance. Like a wave, silence moves through the stands.

(Chorus)

I pledge my allegiance to the grand old flag, and the promise of hope from sea to sea. Under God, one
liberty.

Where a child is hungry, where men have no homes.
Where the powerless are yearning to breathe free.
May we fight for justice, till there's justice for all, and become what God meant us to be.

(Chorus)

I pledge my allegiance to the grand old flag, and the promise of hope from sea to sea. Under God, one
liberty.

Under God, one nation, undivided, we will stand. lift
the banner of liberty-y-y-y-y-y-y-y-y-y.
