ho paints the flowers that you walk by and the silver lining in the sky and who gives wings to a robin's song and the light that shines at the break of dawn chorus:

when you laugh, when you cry,
when you live, when you die the love that you give and you leave behind on the face of a baby when he smiles and opens his eyes on the hearts and souls of a woman and man in the poets words, and a painters hand from the mountains to the desert's shifting sands our time on earth is heaven sent and every where you look god's fingerprints

who moves the pen that writes the song who does the good that goes unsung who brings the rain to the thirsty sea who answers prayers when we're in need

chorus:

when you laugh, when you cry,
the love that you give and you leave behind
eyes
in the poets words, and a painters hand

his footsteps are in the sea his breath the air we breathe he holds the torch and rides the storm to the day you die from the day your born

chorus:

when you laugh, when you cry,
the love that you give and you leave behind
eyes
all across this blessed land our time on earth is heaven sent
