

Gary Allan "Yesterday's Rain"

Visit "Yesterday's Rain" on MotoLyrics.com

Sometimes I think about the touch of your skin
The taste of your lips and It all comes rushing back again
And I start to spin
I think about you when the skies turn grey
Always reminds me of the love we made
Back when you were here
Well, here come the tears

Of yesterdays rain
Yesterday's rain
Well, it's better to have loved and lost than not at all
But I still love to feel it fall
Yesterday's rain
It's just yesterday's rain

Well, I've been told I shouldnt stand in your rain
That's the only place I see your face
I can see you face

It took sometime to heal but I've moved on
I still go back in time and stand in your storm's
Familiar's warth
Always feels like home

Of yesterdays rain
Yesterday's rain
Well, it's better to have loved and lost than not at all
But I still love to feel it fall
Yesterday's rain
It's just yesterday's rain

Let your memory soak me to the bone
Reminds me that Im not alone in yesterday's rain
It's just yesterday's rain
That's just yesterday's pain
Think I'll walk in yesterday's rain

Visit Gary Allan page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

