We have a random on the west side
Personality malfunction
He says, "I can't give you anything at all
Just a room with a bad view of you"

He sent a letter to a downstat
Saying sorry that I missed you
But I can't think of anything to do
He's addicted to the time track

We have a technical
We have a technical

He's in a hotel where they all go
Saying, "Boy, I've lost my memory"
It's so surprising just how quickly things can end
Like a hero on a platform of friends

This table is so crowded
With people that I don't know

And I never really turn my thoughts on you
So the image breaks down again

We have a technical
We have a technical

I suppose it's very shady
At least until the lights go out
Advertising posters on the wall
And the young boys singing softly

Do they ever come back
Or is it always at the wrong time?
I could crawl around the floor just like I'm real
And move a hand in front of my eyes

We have a technical
We have a technical
We have a technical
We have a technical
