Well I am just a souldier
A souldier in this life
Walking through that mine field
Between what's wrong and what is right
I know I'm the battle ground
Between the devil and my God
Well I need to know which way to go
Which orders to follow through
The commander of confusion or the commander of the truth
I know it seems so simple, it's simply a matter of obeying
What the voice is saying, yea

You gotta listen to that voice, man
The one no one wants to hear
He could be standing right beside you
Whispering in your ear
He could be calling down from the mountain top
Or crying out in the wilderness
Well I need to know which way to go
What voice to listen to
The author of confusion or the author of the truth
Are you a wise man or a fool?
Are you a servant or do you rule?
Your life a weapon or a tool?

Well I am just a carpenter
Trying to build a life
Working with the tools You gave to me
Working from the plan You made for me
You gotta measure up, you gotta nail it down
You gotta make it last, you gotta build it strong
You gotta understand the master plan
See it finished before you begin
You gotta build your temple strong
So you know what to keep out and who to let in
When the final inspection comes down
You're gonna understand it's divinely true
Nobody's living in there but you

Nobody's living in there but you, man

Are you stainless steel or just a garbage can?
You fill yourself each and everyday
Decide what's come to visit and what's gonna stay
Decide what to keep and what to give away
In the way you behave and the things you say
Well you can rationalize, capitalize, justify, or compromise
Are you the master of your convictions?
Or just the slave to your own addictions?
So when you hear the voices, and make the choices
Respond in kind and find there's no one else to blame

Cuz' your demon and your god just happen to be
One and the same, yea

They're on the same side

Working from the same set of rules
