

Gene Watson

"How Good a Bad Woman Feels"

Visit "How Good a Bad Woman Feels" on MotoLyrics.com

(Ray Griff)

I thought I wanted an angel and what I got was just that She was so perfect and she was so sweet
That I didn't quite know just how I should ask Next thing I knew it was over our love had lost its appeal
She left for her world I went to mine
I'd forgotten how good a bad woman feels.

I'd forgotten how good a real passion can be
In a honky tonk girl's warm embrace
I'd forgotten the sound of a woman's soft sigh
And that how-did-you look on her face.

Stay just a little while longer
Time is one thing we can steal
Kiss me and hold me as tight as you can
I'd forgotten how good a bad woman feels...

Visit Gene Watson page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.