(Joe Allen)

If I must live alone I'd rather do it by myself For I've never known a mirror to shake its head and turn and walk away
And looking at myself and all the things that I believe in Left dying in the silence of the things you never say.

And sleeping by myself somehow I've never held you Oh I wish I'd knew the reason cause surely there's an answer to it all Talking to myself and something else that I've grown used to
One sided conversation with a narrow minded wall.

Talk to me oh can't you see That I can't bear to get my dream to someone Who would stand and let it fall.

Vision to myself I'm the only one that holds me
And one sided conversations with a narrow minded wall.

And one sided conversations with a narrow minded
wall...
