Now its funny where some women live who sing upon the stage
They live in places where theyve never been Theyll rave about the roses that are growing round the door
Of that, the dear old home theyve never seen.
Theyve lived in Arizona, theyve lived in Alabam
Last year they all lived down in Texas way.
It must be quite a job to move the dear old home about
But just the same this year youll hear them say

Theyre all going back, theyre all going back Theyre all going back to Tennessee and Dixie Theyve all got mothers there and fathers by the score Theyve moved the poor old folk about until their feet are sore
All of them say when they get back theyll stay
What an overcrowded country it will be But just one thing worries me When they all go back to Tennessee
There'll be no one left in Wigan but me.
