Why will a man go out and cheat?
What makes temptation so sweet?
It's a shame that neon lights
Will make a man stay out all night
With a broad in a bar down the street.

I never meant to be that man
But last night I held another's hand
Though her kisses tasted sweet
That's not what made me cheat
So I'll try and explain if I can.

Where (where) where (where) where could I go
Oh, when I needed love you weren't there
And her two open arms offered love sweet and warm
Where could I go but to her.

Please forgive my one mistake
And I swear it's the last one I'll make Let those arms I need the most
Take me back and hold me close
'Cause loving you is a habit I can't break.

Where (where) where (where) where could I go
Oh when I feel the urge to go wrong
The next time I'm tempted
When my glass is emptied
Where will I go I'll go home?

Where will I go I'll go home?...
