I've been crazy, I've been blinded
I've been walking down the wrong path of life
I've been broke down, I've been mistreated
To ever think that our love had a chance to survive

I know I haven't held you as much
As much as I should
I know I haven't given you everything
Everything that I could

If I promise tonight, to change my life
Would you come back, or have I waited too long
If I made things right, if I started tonight
Would you come back to me
Or have I waited too long

I have been faithful, I have never strayed
And I know that there are times I don't see things your way
But I'm still here, and I will never leave
And if this whole thing doesn't work out
It won't be because of me

If I promise tonight, to change my life
Would you come back, or have I waited too long
If I made things right, if I started tonight
Would you come back to me
Or have I waited too long

I remember a wise old man telling me
You better hold on to what you've got
It'll slip right though your fingers
And you don't know what you've got until its gone
Until it is gone

If I promise tonight, to change my life
Would you come back, or have I waited too long
If I made things right, if I started tonight
Would you come back to me
Or have I waited too long

Too long

Have I waited too long
Too long, too long, too long
My baby. . .
