"To Reach Her Love"

Near the dam there's an oak tree
Not too far from our land
There I saw my love
Her naked skin shone forever
Her voice it whispered
His name
In his arms she fell
I hid myself in the distance
And took some comfort in them
And in my staring I wondered if
To reach her love I still can
For a while
I sat and watched them
'Till boredom conquered my mind
In the setting sun
I grabbed a rock hard and solid
Thought of giving some hell
As the evening dwelled
Made my way toward the oak tree
And hit the man till he was dead
And to the girl that cried I said
To reach your love I still can
Beyond the field there's a river
And cool wind chimes through
The trees
There I Saw My Love
