I will now repeat everything that I once have said
This is not new to anyone but me.
Why do I drown myself with the situations when the end is so near.
Forget everything you once knew
We are here for so much more than this.
And here we go again, we fight but no one ever loses,
The agreements we come to don't make sense, the point of trust is lost
And I don't see a point to all of our convictions.
And here we go again, we fight but no one ever loses,
The agreements we come to don't make sense, the
point of trust is lost
And I don't see a point to all of our convictions.
I refuse to change I refuse to take sides,
I'd rather let this all just die tonight,
We will tear this place apart from the inside out, Breaking through this apathy and moving on,
Taking on this upper hand, I can't change this path were on,
My eyes are filled with fear, no ones leaving here the same again,
With their hands raised so high, believing what they know nothing about,
Remove the masks not even a hint of truth remains,
Will things get better, or will I just become numb to it all,
I cannot take this place. I need to change, as it unfolds, Let this all seep in, what are we fighting for!
