I didn't come to say goodbye
because I don't know the proper tone for a goodbye
or even the words
for the occasion
or where to put my hands
where to look,
which wall of the room
to look at
I didn't come to say goodbye.

I didn't come to say goodbye
because I don't understand the proper time for a goodbye that finds the right words and bridges distance and then frees your hands and lets you look
beyond the wall of a room, look
I didn't come to say goodbye

We'll never retrace
our steps, never
there will no longer be room,
not even in hiding,
in days past, never.

We'll never come back
or only to remember that the time of memory
is the time of delay,
and it doesn't make things come back let me go.

though now I can see it,
the proper tone for a goodbye,
and I know the words
for the occasion
and I can shake hands

and I can look at any wall in a room
look...
