Now the words and claims are seen as always the way they'll always be, way they'll always be.
Truth is halfway true, the man is only a man who fails to know, the people shouting for him have turned now telling him to go.

Powers that have place, esteemed positions telling him to cry, telling him to cry, Soon another song is sung, in turn for existing blame and then Apologise, conditions turn, then it happens all again.

After all the things are said, no God's a man,
no God's a man,
and yet after all the things are said, no God's a man, must happen all again.

After all the things are said, no God's a man,
no God's a man,
and yet after all the things are said, no God's a man, and then again
