And when the morning comes
If there's been no rest for you
We've been friends long enough
You should know what to do

If that's how you started your day
Why keep running away
When you could
Come and join me on my cloud

And in the afternoon
If things are still the same
You've always held a key
To effect the change

What in the morning I said
When you're running away from me
And you could come and join me on my cloud

How you must wonder in the evening
How everything got so turned around
How everything got so turned around

And I've saved a special place
Right next to me
And it's always been your space
I'm sure that you will see

You could always count on me
To love you and let you be free
So why not come and join me
You could come and join me
You can come and join me
On my cloud

How you must wonder in the evening
How everything got so turned around
How everything got so turned around
