[Verse 1]

You saw me sittin all alone, at the bar with my hat tipped low drinkin a glass of gin with no ice And even though I sipped it slow, it would burn like a volcano
that's when you came sat down and said hi
And you didn't even recognize who I was but I didn't mind,
cause I didn't feel like signing autographs You saw me as a normal guy and you treated me oh so nice
You just wanted to know why I looked sad
That's when I said

[Chorus]

I'm sad cause I hurt a soul tie
and when she left my soul died
thought we'd be together for life
(thought we'd be together for life)
I lost her because of my damn pride,
I'm a man that can't cry, but look at me now,
with my face in the ground and a glaze in my eye.

I was so tough, til she called my bluff, packed up all her
stuff
and left me here with a glaze in my eye.
My whole life I was taught, a man don't show his heart
But that's a foolish thought cause now I got a glaze in my eye.

[Verse 2]

And it's harder to hide, my runny nose and my throat is dry
But I'm still tryin not to let it show I'll just blame it on the alcohol, cause it makes me think I'm strong,
but thats some bull and we both know (we both know) I can't believe I told some waitress, all of my personal business
And I ain't really believe you'd understand, but you did understand

You said everyone has issues, then you passed me a tissue
And told me that cryin is what shows that I'm a real man

[Chorus]

I'm sad cause I hurt a soul tie
and when she left my soul died
thought we'd be together for life
(thought we'd be together for life)
I lost her because of my damn pride,
I'm a man that can't cry, but look at me now,
with my face in the ground and a glaze in my eye.

I was so tough, til she called my bluff, packed up all her
and left me here with a glaze in my eye.
My whole life I was taught, a man don't show his heart
But that's a foolish thought, cause now I got a glaze in
my eye.

I was so tough, til she called my bluff, packed up all her
and left me here with a glaze in my eye.
My whole life I was taught, a man don't show his heart
But that's a foolish thought, cause now I got a glaze in
my eye.
