From the same place it is born
It is shattered and torn replaced by symbols and lies this is how a dream

truth lies in those who have cleared out the way followed their own path and had their own say they cannot be silenced their views unobstructed and as they blow through all their opposition has constructed sounds echo in the chests of all those left behind But still are those locked behind puppeteer's lines

This is how, this is how a dream dies
This is how, this is how a dream dies

Their hope tucked away under ivy green mist

Locked behind stone silhouettes in the places where they rest

This is how a dream dies tonight

This is how, this is how a dream dies

From the same place, It is born it is shattered, shattered and torn Replaced by symbols, symbols and lies this is how a dream dies
Their hope tucked away under ivy green mist
Locked behind stone silhouettes in the places where
they rest
Living life with the door half open Just enough to see in Living life with the door half open
Just enough to see in cause we don't trust what is to come...
