The moon shines different on this cold december night
who knew that compromise could save your life
Three less drinks could change everything
One less errand could change everythinnggg
Take the keys, run for your life turn your back don't say goodbye
Your nearing your destination
caught in the middle between two lines of danger Voyager, Voyager, please stay home who knew that you would take one's life
One less errand could change everythinnggg
The moon shines different on this cold december night
who knew that compromise could save your life
Three less drinks could change everything

One less errand could change everythinnggg
cross the first row of yellow lines
turn your back don't say goodbye
Your nearing your destination
caught in the middle between two lines of danger
The median, is not safe....

Lying there now, you wanted to be better
Take your last breath, I love you forever
Time has run out It's time to die...

The yellow lines we used to see are forever stained with your shed blood Lying there now, you wanted to be better
Time has run out, It's time to die Take your last breath and say goodbye...
