Take a little breather, figure out the reasons
That you stopped believing, save me your caresses
Or clear up the confusion that your face confesses
Travel around the sun

And in the meantime
Call me only with your silence
Leave me stranded on this island
Go without me on your pillow, on your skin

And in the meantime
Disbelieve in your suspicions
Reconsider your position, your desires
On your lips only my name that you will whisper

And remember take all the time that you need
I'll be waiting every moment in the meantime

Take a little breather perhaps you think in love
The grass is always greener set free your excesses
I hope you find the courage that your faith professes
To travel around the sun

And when my teardrops
Melt away within your laughter
Till you find what you are after
If our paths cross down the line

Just pretend that you don't see me
That I'm new to your existence
If we're meant to go the distance
There's no test we can't survive

And in the meantime
Call me only with your silence
Leave me stranded on this island
Go without me on your pillow, on your skin

And in the meantime
Disbelieve in your suspicions
Reconsider your position your desires
On your lips only my name that you will whisper

And remember take all the time that you need
I'll be waiting every moment in the meantime
