There's something in the way the words come out of your mouth

They seem to come out so slow

You're a dictionary without an ending

The book that I like to read

'Cause you are always in between lines

We don't want to be a part of what you're up to

So what are you? You're the good stuff

But we don't buy that anymore

So please just let us

There's something in the way your stories break me

I feel like I really understand

You're a dream that I would like to sleep through

The page that I don't want to turn

'Cause you are always in between lines

And we don't want to be a part of what you're up to

So what are you? You're the good stuff

But we don't buy that anymore

So please just let us

So what are you? You're the good stuff

But we don't want to be a part of what you're up to
